Halo: ODST

Hello HailShadow here and I'm bringing you a Halo Fanfiction hoping you will enjoy it. So I am accepting OC's and hoping to continue this one. So on to the story.

I was standing with my new team while the commander was explaining what we had to do he was telling the team to drop in the a ghost town that i couldn't know because it was classified. i got in to the pod and the commander said it might hurt dropping down in to the building. when we were waiting to go down the pods shock i was scared that we might not hit the destination i was tilting and when i hit i saw my team going in the other direction to the destination. i couldn't believe that i missed the point i was supposed to go to now i have to regroup with my team.

i couldn't believe my eyes, it was a civilization of people i wanted to go over there but they were scared as hell. i need to go through there to get to my team so i found a building and i went through it then i saw a covenant grunt i quickly jumped behind a desk and took out my knife and threw it at the grunt. it hit him in the chest but it didn't die it was embedded into his armour. the grunt was screaming as it was trying to pull it out so it took out my silenced pistol and shot it in the chest and it still didn't die so i shot it multiple times and it had perished with a giant hole going through it. i walked carefully to it and took out my knife it was all bloody i have never known its blood was a glowing blue.

i went through the building with out no problems but when i came out i was closer to the people more than i wanted to i was so close i could touch the cook i was in the food pantry i accidentally knocked over some pans the cook saw me and my guns and screamed the milita came around the corner and started shooting at me i ducked behind the grill and took my assault rifle and i shot at the milita and it wounded one and killed two. the milita threw grenades and i ran like hell one blew up behind my and i flew and hit my head on the stove. i was knocked out and i woke up and found myself being taken to a pit of dead covenant and military i noticed that they had no guns and i had no guns but i still had my knife. so it took out the one behind me and punched another one in the face. then i got up and the people that were carrying my took their pistols out and started shooting me i took my knife out of the dead guy and threw it at the guy who shot my in the leg i crawled to my knife and took it out. then it took the guys gun and killed the other one.

then i got up and limped over to the civilization again and i scared more people and punched the milita guy in the face and gave him a bloody nose and i asked him where the weapons are he would answer me so i punched him again in the stomach and asked him again then he show me where they were and probably after looking for 2 hours i finally found my pistol and assault rifle then i found something interesting it was a DMR i thought they didn't make those anymore. they made things long after the chief was born so i took it and found a ammo stash and found my ammo and found some ammo for the DMR. the DMR was a single shot i was surprised, i thought they were like battle rifles 3 shots.

then i went down to the spot i saw my team drop i saw the new guy and i gave him the permission to talk and he said that he was separated from the drop to and i said that he could come along with me while i look for the rest of the team. as we walked along the roads we got tired and thought that we could take the day and sleep for a couple hours so we finally found a spot to sleep so got in the building and found a room and we got a key and the rookie got a new room it had clean running water a nice bed and good walls not like the ones i got i was nice enough to give the room to him and when we were checking the rooms we saw some people sleeping and walking in there hotel room and when they saw us they screamed. like if you saw 6 foot man with armour helmet and big guns would you scream? and so i got the crappy room and he got the good room. then we talked about my plan and he came up with a few good ideas.

then we woke up to the sound of gun fire and we got up and ran to the hotel exit with out guns at the ready. we saw the covenant shooting at the milita i saw yesterday and the milita said they needed help so we ran over to them and i explained how nobody was supposed to live here and how our mission was to investigate the city for people surviving or the covenant were here. i don't think that he was understanding what i was saying. he had this weird face on. so then we were shooting at the covenant and i asked the milita leader if they had any rare weapons then while the fight was on we dodged bullets and i got shot with the plasma rifle the scar in my armor was 6 inches long and 2 inches wide. then he showed me a mac blast gun and i pointed it at the enemy and pulled the trigger and the gun said "macblast firing in 3.. 2.. 1.." at first nothing happened then 1 second later KA-BOOOOM it was like getting hit with a truck me and the rookie were the only one that survived the covies were dead or they retreated because there was so much rubble and i helped the rookie up and he said the blast was horrible. he had a bloody cut in his arm i was afraid he wouldn't make it. so i asked the militia leader if they had a medic they said" no we don't have a medic, but we have a doctor." "where i he? where!" is said. "he lives down 2 blocks, go in the 4 story apartment building, then go in room 1992." said the militia leader.

while nikolia and I going to the doctor we ran into 2 elite zealots that were searching the area." Get down." I said tackling Nikolia. Also alerting the enemy so I whipped out my knife and threw it a one in the head. But the rookie was struggling with another zealot so I tackled the elite and kick him but the elite was stronger and forced me off him. Just before it stabbed me with an energy sword nik jumped on the elite and sawed off his head. "whoa" I said recovering. "gosh I almost died saving your life dude, learn balance." Said nikolia. "thanks" " your welcome now get up lazy." After they got up they realized that they were there. They could've snuck past them.

"hey let's get in come it looks infected.." I said.

When they got in the docter freaked out and pulled a shotgun us and fired we dodged easily and stopped him." Can you fixed my friend up?" I said.
